SEQUIM LAVENDER GROWERS ASSOCIATION

Join the Sequim Lavender Growers Association

Grow your business, connect with fellow lavender growers, and help strengthen the Olympic Peninsula's lavender industry.

The Sequim Lavender Growers Association (SLGA) brings together lavender farms and lavender-based businesses throughout Clallam and Jefferson Counties to promote locally grown lavender, support our members, and celebrate our region's lavender heritage.

Why join

- The Sequim Lavender Festival
  Take part in our signature festival every July, with reduced booth fees for members and special street fair opportunities.
- Marketing and visibility
  Your farm or business is listed and linked on the SLGA and Sequim Lavender Festival websites and pinned in the festival app.
- Education and resources
  Connect with fellow growers, share expertise, and benefit from educational opportunities and industry resources.
- Networking and collaboration
  Build relationships with other lavender growers and businesses while strengthening our regional lavender community.
- Have a voice
  Take part in association decisions, vote on important matters, and help shape the future of our local lavender industry.

Membership requirements

- Be local
  Your primary residence or business is in Clallam or Jefferson County, Washington.
- Be lavender-focused
  Your farm or business is mainly involved in growing, promoting or selling lavender or lavender-based products.
- Support locally grown lavender
  Lavender plant material in the products you sell comes from member farms or other farms in Clallam or Jefferson County, subject to the limited exception in our bylaws.
- Welcome visitors
  Farm-owner members offer free public access during regular business hours in lavender season and during the Sequim Lavender Festival.
- Annual dues of $150
  Membership runs January through December. New members pay their dues after the board approves their application.
